Enrolling in courses and work groups

Username for logging in to computers (choose one below:)
E832172
E832174
E832176
E832178
E832180
Password
RUintro18!

Enrolling in courses
In order to participate in courses and exams, you have to enrol in advance. At Radboud University, enrolling in a course means that you are automatically registered for that course’s first examination opportunity. You must register for any resits on your own. In order to ensure that you enrol in the proper courses, it is extremely important that you use the correct course code when enrolling! In the course overviews below, the course code for each degree programme is shown in brackets next to the course name. If you are uncertain about anything, please contact the Student Information Point (STIP) via www.ru.nl/nsm/stip.

You can enrol in a course through Osiris. Osiris is Radboud University’s student information system. In Osiris, you can make any necessary address changes, request your exam results, and register and cancel enrolment for courses and exams. When you change your enrolment status for a course in Osiris, you will be added to or removed from the associated Brightspace course. This information is not processed immediately. After changing your enrolment status in Osiris, it will take at least one day to be reflected in Brightspace.

This document explains how you can create your individual schedule and for which courses and associated work groups you must enrol on your own.

Selecting courses and work groups
You are going to enrol in the courses you will be taking in the first semester: during blocks 1 and 2. Before you enrol in Osiris yourself, you need to know what courses you have to enrol in. This information is available in the schedule provided by your degree programme. At www.ru.nl/schedule you can view your schedule. A manual for the schedule can be found at www.ru.nl/nsm/it.

Work groups are a part of many courses during the first semester. Work groups involve working in smaller groups. Work groups are held at several different times. Take a good look at the schedule to determine which work group you want to enrol in. In the schedule, you will notice that work groups for different courses sometimes take place at the same time. Make sure that the meetings for the work groups you choose do not conflict with each other. The sections below contain further information on the potential work group combinations for each degree programme. Unless otherwise specified, each course has an accompanying work group.

Business Administration
If you follow the Bachelor’s programme in Business Administration, you have to register for the following courses:

- Academic Skills (BIN117BA)
- Introduction to Business Administration (BCU341)
- Methods of Research and Intervention (MOR002)

Please note: Registering for work groups takes place through Brightspace starting August 27. You can only register in work groups 3 to 6.

- Statistics (MOR004)
- Organisation Theory (MOR001)

Please note: You don’t need to register for work groups yet.
Economics and Business Economics
If you follow the Bachelor’s programme in Economics and Business Economics, you have to register for the following courses:

- Macroeconomics (BCU163EN)
- Introduction to Economics and Business Economics (BIN116EN)
- Methods of Research and Intervention (MOR002)
  Please note: Registering for work groups takes place through Brightspace starting August 27. You can only register in work groups 7 and 8.
- Academic Skills (BIN117EN)
  Please note: Registration for work groups takes place after the first lecture.
- Statistics (MOR004)