About the theme
Developments in modern society move forward fast. To keep up with global challenges, like climate change and a growing world population, we need to improve ourselves. We need to improve our educational systems. We need to train teachers, psychologists and caregivers to recognize and nurture our most talented, highly able children and adults. For a brighter future and a better world.

How do we do that?
During the joint conference ‘Room for Talent: Changing Perspectives on Gifted Education’, experts from the Netherlands and Hong Kong come together, to share their insights in how we could create room for highly able children and adults to develop their talents. With the Asian-European cooperation, we challenge you to change perspectives in accepted views on giftedness.
