Named Fund

The Radboud Fund offers alumni and interested parties the opportunity to create a Named Fund. The initiator of a Named Fund determines the fund’s objective and can earmark their donations in this way. It is also possible for other parties to donate to an existing Named Fund. A Named Fund is managed by the Radboud Fund and is therefore linked to Radboud University.

P&J Fund

The P&J Fund is a Named Fund and is part of the Radboud Fund, which is responsible for its financial management. The P&J Fund was founded by alumnus and development psychologist Willem Poppeliers and his wife, alumna Trudy Jacobs. The aim of the P&J Fund is to support academic research in the field of Sexual Grounding Therapy®. The P&J Fund thus helps to create a world in which people can develop safely and freely, also in terms of their sexuality, which enables them to connect intimately with their partner and take responsibility for their relationship and for raising their children. By creating the fund, Poppeliers is continuing the work of the Foundation for Sexual Grounding Therapy®, which he established nearly 20 years ago.

Towards safe sexual development/Sexual Grounding Therapy®

Children cannot survive without social and cultural protection. They need warmth, protection, love and autonomy. Otherwise they will be unable to achieve full development, enter into a satisfying and intimate relationship with a partner as an adult and take care of their own children. In contemporary society, economic interests such as advertising, mass media and the internet have an increasing influence, both positive and negative, on types of relationships and perspectives on love. Therefore, more attention than ever is needed for the healthy sexual development of children and young people. The protection and social-emotional development of children and adolescents also plays an important role in their perspectives on love.

The P&J Fund has an academic committee that advises the Radboud Fund on the preliminary proposals and final applications for academic research into the theoretical and practical backgrounds of healthy sexual development of adolescents and young adults and the effects of Sexual Grounding Therapy® on the behaviour of people. The research aims to:

- develop expertise to study the theoretical foundations of Sexual Grounding Therapy®;
- develop, use and evaluate instruments and interventions that can be used to improve and refine Sexual Grounding Therapy®.

The members of the academic committee have a university background and research experience in methodology and behavioural sciences.
