Medical treatment

The Dutch medical care system might be different from your system at home. Therefore, if you are in need of medical treatment please follow the instructions below

Family doctor (general practitioner (GP) / huisarts)
First, make an appointment by telephone
If you need medical treatment, you can visit a general practitioner (huisarts). You will have to make an appointment by telephone to consult the doctor at his or her practice first.

A different approach to medical care in the Netherlands/General practitioner as your first and central contact
Internationals who come to the Netherlands are often surprised by the manner in which medical treatment is provided here. To avoid confusion or frustration, the following information may be useful: in the Netherlands, your general practitioner will be your main source for medical care. The extent of responsibility and treatment of the general practitioner goes further than in many other countries. This means they seldom give recommendations for treatment from a specialist and instead treat the problem themselves. Furthermore, there is often the impression that Dutch general practitioners undermedicate their patients in comparison to many other countries. For example, when calling for an appointment to see your doctor it is not unusual to be told by the assistant that you should wait several more days to see if your symptoms go away spontaneously. When they do not, you will be granted an appointment to see the general practitioner. When visiting the general practitioner, you may again hear that you will need to wait before any medication is prescribed. This is sometimes a point of frustration for Internationals when visiting their GP in the Netherlands, but it is common practice here and experience shows it works out well. Please note that you can only go to a GP in the town/village that you live in.

Prescriptions and referral to medical specialist
The general practitioner may prescribe medication, which can be obtained from a pharmacy (apotheek). He or she may also refer you to a specialist at the hospital. If necessary, the specialist will arrange hospitalisation for further treatment.

Medical bills
Every time you visit your general practitioner or the pharmacy, bring your EU Health Insurance Card or any other kind of proof of health insurance with you. General practitioners charge about €30-€50 for a visit. Therefore, do not forget to bring cash money with you to pay for the consultation and ask for proof of payment. You will have to pay in advance and ask your insurance for a reimbursement of the costs.

In case of a medical emergency outside of office hours:
Always contact a general practitioner on call or the ‘Huisartsenpost’, T: 0900-8880 first. If necessary they will refer you to the hospital.
