

Declaration of Academic Integrity

Radboud Business Law Institute

Academic integrity

Academic integrity is one of the three core values of the research of the Radboud Business Law Institute (OO&R). All of the research conducted within the institute is bound to comply with generally accepted principles of good academic research. This includes the principles of honesty, due diligence, transparency, independence and responsibility.

The institute’s policy concerning academic integrity is available at <https://www.ru.nl/law/businessandlawresearchcentre/research/academic-integrity/>

On the basis of this policy the researchers of the institute have to disclose all their paid and unpaid secondary activities, other relevant interests as well as external funding for research projects (consisting of either financial contributions or working hours). Further, researchers have to keep a good research data management.

The integrity policy of the institute applies in full to fellows and external PhD candidates affiliated with the institute and having their main employment outside Radboud University.

The undersigned declares to be aware of the institute’s integrity policy and to act accordingly.

Terms of use of the digital library

The undersigned also accepts the conditions of use of the digital library. These can be found via the web page:

<https://www.ru.nl/library/library/about-library/library-regulations/conditions-digital-library/>

From these conditions follows, amongst other things, that digital library files may only be used in the academic context of study, research, and education, and not for commercial purposes.
